Certain laws to cease to apply

19. The provisions of the Sikkim Public Security (Requisitioning and Acquisition of Immovable Property) Rules, 1962, and any other law shall cease to apply and have any effect to any matter for which provision is made in this Act.
STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The principle underlying acquisition by State of private property rests up on the principle that welfare of the people or the public is the paramount law. In Sikkim, the provisions of the Sikkim Public Security (Requisitioning and Acquisition of Immovable Property) Rules, 1962, do not appear to be quite adequate and sufficient for the purpose. The central Land Acquisition Act, 1894, has not yet been extended to and enforced in Sikkim though the Government have already taken steps therefor. The central Requisitioning and Acquisition of Immovable Property Act, 1952 has, however, been extended to and enforced in Sikkim; but the provisions of the said Act can be invoked for requisition and acquisition of property only for the purpose of the Union. The Government therefore, felt the urgent necessity for an enactment providing for requisition and speedy acquisition of land for the purpose of the State in Sikkim and this bill has been framed with the above objects in view.

The Bill defines and specifies the public purposes for which land can be requisitioned or acquired under the provision thereof, for the payment of an amount for such requisition and acquisition, the principles for determination of such amount and other matters connected therewith. In view of the great anxiety of the Government for the promotion for the economic interest of the weaker section of the people including the cultivators, in accordance with the Directives Principles enshrined in Article 46 of the Constitution of India, specific provisions have been made in the Bill that if any land requisitioned or acquired has been cultivated by a cultivator on the date of such requisition or acquisition, as the case may be, for a period of more than five years, a portion out of the amount payable for the requisition and acquisition of such land shall be paid to the cultivators.

The Bill has been framed accordingly.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

There has been a demand for imposing a ceiling on agricultural lands in the State of Sikkim as has been done in other State in India. It has been considered necessary to take measures for exercising social control over the resources of agricultural lands in Sikkim with a view to prevent concentration of agricultural lands is the hands of a few person to the common people to subserve the common good.

In 1949 and in 1951 it was expressly declared for the removal of doubts that the Khazanas for land was payable directly to the State and that there was no interposing agency between the Government of Sikkim and the bustiwallas of agricultural lands. The same position has also been expressly and categorically reaffirmed and declared in this Bill. In order to implement socio-economic and welfare land reforms in Sikkim, it is, therefore, necessary to impose a ceiling limits on lands which may be retained by any person under the State Government and to provide that all lands in excess of such ceiling limits stand vested in the State and to be distributed or otherwise managed by the State Government for the welfare of the people and to subserve the common good.

With the objects in view the Bill provides for the following :-

1. Imposition of ceiling on agricultural lands,
2. vesting of all agricultural lands in excess of such ceiling limits,
3. payment of an amount to persons whose excess lands would stand vested,
4. preparation of records-of-rights in respect of all Agricultural lands,
5. determination of revenue payable by persons for lands allowed to be retained by them,
6. principle of distribution of vested lands and management of vested lands by the State Government.
7. and other incidental, consequential, procedural and miscellaneous matters.

The Government is also of opinion that in order to protect the interests of the Schedule Tribes and to promote their economic interests with special care, in accordance with the Directive Principals, contained in Article 46 and other related Articles of the Constitution of India, special provisions should be made providing for restrictions on alienation of lands by persons belonging to such Schedule Tribes and a separate Chapter has been included in this Bill with that object in view.

The Bill has been framed accordingly.

ELECTION COMMISSION OF INDIA

NOTIFICATION.

No. 82/SKM/77:— In pursuance of section 106 of the Representation of the People Act, 1951 (43 of 1951) the Election Commission hereby publishes the order, dated 2 July, 1977 of the High Court of Sikkim in Election Petition No. 1 of 1977.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF SIKKIM

Election Petition No. 1 of 1977,

Santosh Kumar Rai ............ Petitioner.
Versus
Sonam Wangdi and others ............ Respondents.

ORDER

2.7.77. Present:— Respondent No. 1, Shri Sonam Wangdi (the Returning Officer) in person along with his learned counsel Shri J. N. Roy.

Respondent No. 2, Shri D.K. Manavalan (the Divisional Commissioner) is represented by his counsel, the learned Advocate - General Shri S. R. Sarkar.

Respondent No. 3, Shri Chhatra Bahadur Chettri (the returned candidate) in person along with his learned counsel Shri N.B Kharga.
As has already been pointed out and pointed out in the order dated 1st July, 1977, the petitioner failed to and did not appear yesterday, that is, 1st July, 1977, which was, the date fixed for hearing of the election petition and that no lawyer or any other person was present on his behalf nor any petition was submitted by him or on his behalf. Under the circumstances it was urged by the learned counsel for all the respondents that the petition was to be dismissed for non-prosecution. Under Section 87 of the Representation of the People Act, 1951, it is provided that “subject to the provisions of this Act and of any rules made thereunder, every petition was to be tried by the High Court, as nearly as may be, in accordance with the procedure applicable under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, to the trial of suits”. The word “trial” has been given a narrow definition in the Explanation to sub-section (4) to Section 86 of the Representation of the People Act, 1951, providing that the trial of a petition shall be deemed to commence on the date fixed for the respondents to appear before the High Court and to answer or claims or claims made in the petition: but the said definition is, as been made expressly clear in the aforesaid Explanation, to be applied only for the purpose of section 86 and Section 97 of the Act. The word “trial”, therefore, in Section 87 of the Representation of People Act, 1951, shall have its ordinary mean and in view of the several decisions of the Supreme Court on the point it can now be taken to be settled that the word “trial” in Section 87 of the Act is used as meaning the entries proceeding from the filing of the election petition until the conclusion of the proceedings. That being so, the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply at every stage of the election proceeding commencing from the presentation of the election petition until the conclusion of the proceeding, unless there is any express provision in the Representation of People Act, 1951, or the rules made thereunder, to the contrary or providing for a particular matter. In other words, unless there is anything contrary in the Representation of People Act and the rules made thereunder or unless the particular matter falling for determination is covered by any express provision in the aforesaid Act or the rules made thereunder, the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply.

2. In the Act or the rules made there under, there appears to be no provision providing for the procedure to be followed or the power to be exercised in a case where the election petitioners makes default and does not proceed with his petition. That being so, I feel that I should be inclined to hold that such a case is to be decided in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure.

3. It is no doubt true that there has been some divergence of judicial opinion on the question whether an election petition can be dismissed for non-prosecution under the provisions of order IX or Order XVII of the Code of Civil Procedure among different High Courts and it appears that even the same-High Court has spoken in different voices on different occasions.

4. In Dinanath Kaul Vs. Election Tribunal (AIR 1960 Jammu & Kashmir 25), a Full Bench of the Jammu and Kashmir High Court was of the view that an election petition had to proceed to completion and that the petitioner could not refuse to prosecute it and further that an order of dismissal of such a petition on the ground of non-appearance is contrary to law. In Sawalia Beharlal Verma Vs. Tri-bikram Deonarayan Singh (AIR 1969 Patna 378), a Division Bench of the Patna High Court expressly different from the aforesaid Full Bench decision and after examining all the relevant provisions of the Representation of People Act, 1951 and the rules made thereunder and several reported decisions of different High Courts on the point, it was held by the Division Bench, mainly relying on the decisions of Hidayatullah, C.J. (as his Lordship then was) in Mannalal Vs. Nandram Das Dwarka Das (AIR 1958 Madhya Pradesh 260), that if the petitioner did not appear or take steps when the case was fixed for hearing the Court could dismiss the election petition under Order XVII or Order IX, as the case may be. In the said Madhya Pradesh case, Hidayatullah, C.J. (as his Lordship then, was) actually went a step further and held that such dismissal is justified even under the inherent powers which every Tribunal must be deemed to possess and his lordship further held that it is axiomatic that no Court or Tribunal can be expected or supposed to continue a proceeding before it has not appeared or has not cared to remain present.

5. This very question also came up for consideration before a Full Bench of the Punjab and Haryana High Court in Jugal Kishore Vs. Baldev Prasad (AIR 1968 Punjab & Haryana 152) where Grover, J. (as his Lordship then was) expressly approved of the aforesaid Madhya Pradesh decision and held that even though the Madhya Pradesh decision was given under the relevant provisions of the Representation of People Act, 1951, as it stood before the amendment of 1966, yet the law on the point remained the same and that there being no distinct provision even after the amendment of 1956, in the Representation of People Act, 1951, on the rules made thereunder, laying down any particular or special procedure which is to be followed when the petitioner commits default either in appearance or in production of evidence or in prosecuting the petition, the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure would be applicable in view of the provisions of Section 87 of the Representation of People Act. As to the observations of Hidayatullah, C.J. in the Madhya Pradesh case, Grover, J., pointed out further that while at the time when the Madhya Pradesh case was being decided, elected petition were to be decided by Tribunals and not by the High Courts, under the amended provisions of the Representation of People Act, 1951, such election petitions are to be tried by the High Court itself and as such, his Lordship held that even if it could be argued or supposed that Election Tribunal might not have possessed any such inherent power as they were held to possess by Hidayatullah, C.J., there can be no manner of doubt that the High Court, which is a Court of record and as such possesses all the inherent powers of a Court, can invoke such powers in trying election petition also.
6. It appears from the decisions of the Allahabad High Court in Biswanath Prasad Vs. Malikhan rma (AIR 1964 Allahabad 181), and Brizmohan Lai Vs. Election Tribunal (AIR 1965 Allahabad 450) that the Allahabad view was that the Election Tribunal had no power to dismiss the election petition for default of appearance of the petitionor and that the hearing of the petition, therefore, must proceed according to law and conclude on merits. These Allahabad cases along with several Supreme Court decisions and decisions of other High Courts were considered by a Full Bench of the Allahabad High Court in Duryodhan Fv. Sitaram and others (AIR 1970 Allahabad 1) and it was held by Sitis Chandra and B.N. Lokur, JJ., that the aforesaid Allahabad decisions did not lay down the correct law and that the election tribunal, had full jurisdiction to dismiss the proceeding arising out of an election petition for default of appearance of the election petitioner. It may be noted that the said Allahabad Full Bench decision construed the provisions of the Representation of People Act, 1951, as it stood before the Amendment of 1966, but, in my view, the amendments of 1966 have not introduced any change on the point at issue as was pointed out by Grover, J., in the Full Bench case of the Punjab & Haryana High Court noted hereinbefore.

7. It may be noted that in almost all these decisions referred to hereinabove, the decisions of the Supreme Court in Jagannath Vs. Jayant Singh (AIR 1954 Supreme Court 210), Sangram Singh Vs. Election Tribunal (AIR 1955 Supreme Court 425), Malappa Basappa Vs. Vasavaraj Ayyappa (AIR 1958 Supreme Court 698), Kamraj Nadar Vs. Kunju Tevar (AIR 1958 Supreme Court 637) were considered by the High Courts, but were construed differently by the different High Courts.

8. I have gone through the Supreme Court decisions noted hereinbefore and in my view none of the said decisions has actually decided the pecuniary point for my consideration, though some of the observations in the aforesaid cases may be said to have thrown some light on the point at issue without, however, laying down any definite proposition on the point. But even then, I am inclined to hold, with respect, that those observations of the Supreme Court in the aforesaid cases, relied on by the other High Courts as stated hereinbefore, have been properly and rightly construed by the Division Bench of the Patna High Court in Swalia Beharilal Verma Vs. Tribikram Deonarayan Singh (AIR 1969 Patna 378) and by the Full Bench of the Punjab and Haryana High Court and the Allahabad High Court in the case noted hereinabove and in my view the position would be a baffling one if it were to be held that even if the election petitioner chose not to appear or to prosecute a petition or to lead any evidence, the trial of the petition was yet to be proceeded with. As has been pointed out in the Allahabad Full Bench case, if the election petition is not to be dismissed for default of the petitioner's appearance, but yet to be heard on merits in spite of the petitioner's non-appearance and as such leading no evidence whatsoever, the only evidence available for consideration would then be the evidence of the respondent and I have my doubts as to whether such a decision on such interested evidence on serious matters like corrupt practices or other alleged violations of law would at all be justified.

9. It should be noted that Chapter IV of the Representation of People Act, 1951, consisting of Sections 108 to 111, deals with withdrawal of election petitions. It has been urged by Shri Roy, the learned counsel for the respondent No.1, and by the learned Advocate-General, appearing for the respondent No. 2, that there is a good deal of difference between withdrawal of or withdrawing an election proceeding on the one hand and withdrawing from the election proceeding and not conducting the election petition. In my view, this contention has a good deal, of force and substance. It is no doubt true that the provisions contained in Sections 109 to 111 of the Representation of People Act have been made for the purpose of ensuring that if the petitioner chooses to withdraw his petition, any one else who may be interested from the constituency and who might himself have been a petitioner, may have an opportunity to apply to be substituted as petitioner so as to prosecute the petition. True, this purpose and object can immediately be defeated by the petitioner following the course of having his-petition dismissed non-prosecution and by not filling an application for withdrawal. But as pointed out by Grover, J. in the aforesaid Punjab & Haryana Full Bench case, “if the intention of the legislature was that owing to the peculiar nature of the election petitions, they should not be allowed to be disposed of or dismissed without prosecution to the end of the trial—that apparently was the reason for enactment of Sections 109 to 111 - it is difficult to understand why it has been left to die whim caprice and sweet-will of the petitioner to defeat that intention by following one course or the other”. Satish Chandra J., also in that Allahabad Full Bench case observed this to be undoubtedly a lacuna in the Act, because it makes provision when an election petitioner is allowed to withdraw the election petition, bit makes no such provision if he just, refuses to prosecute, and thus withdraws himself from the proceeding. Be that as it may, I am of opinion that Sections 109 to 111 can only apply in the case of withdrawal of the election petition and not to a case of the election petitioner withdrawing himself from the trial and as such will not apply to a dismissal of application for default. As Satish Chandra, J., further pointed out that it is for the legislature to fill in the lacuna by appropriate amendments and it is not for the Courts to legislate in the guise of interpretation. I respectfully agree with the view of Grover, J., and Satish Chandra, J. I tried to ascertain as far as I could in my way whether the appropriate legislature has made any endeavour to remove this lacuna by appropriate measures even though such lacuna was pointed out as early as in 1968; but I have not been able to trace any step taken by the legislature in this regard. The learned counsel appearing for the respondents have also submitted that the provisions of the statute on the point remain as it reminded with all the lacunae as stated above.
10. I have already pointed out hereinafore that I have not been able to lay hand on any reported decision of the Supreme Court directly on the point. But the learned Advocate-General, appearing for the respondent No. 2 and also Shri Roy, the learned counsel appearing for respondent No. 1, have drawn my attention to a book entitled "Supreme Court on Election Law" edited by B.A. Masodkar. Advocate and published by Lawyers' Home, Indore, which appears to be a summary of the Supreme Court decision on the election law and at page 21 c of that book there is a reference to a case of Dr. Sushila Balraj Vs. Ardhendu Bhusan (Civil Appeal No. 222 of 1964 decided on 18.3.1964) and it is noted therein that the decision is reported in 1965 Maharashtra Law journal, page 6c, but the said report is not available here and could not be made available to me by the learned counsel. In the summary of the said decision at page 219 of the book it appears that the Supreme Court has observed that "if, however, the election petitioner refused to give evidence and did not examine any witness, it cannot be said that it is not open to the Tribunal to dismiss the petition for non-prosecution. Such a power is implicit in the Tribunal. Even otherwise, on all the issues which were framed, the onus was on the election petitioner and in the absence of any evidence, the issues would have had to be answered against the election petitioner and that would have led to the same result".

11. In view of the observations quoted above I have felt that, though in my view the election petition is liable to be dismissed for non-prosecution, yet I should try to ascertain if any of the material issues framed in this case can be decided without any evidence from or on behalf the petitioner. As will appear from the election petition and the written statement of the respondents, the admitted case is that the petitioner did not make or subscribe any oath as required under Article 84 of the Constitution of India and his nomination paper was rejected by the respondent No. 1 on the ground of his failure to make and subscribe the required oath. It is no doubt true that the case of the petitioner in his petition is that he was not supplied with any prescribed form of oath and was misled by the respondent No. 1 who allegedly acted in collusion with the respondent No. 2 and allegedly acted in per his direction. As, however, the petitioner has not led any evidence whatsoever on this point, the aforesaid allegations cannot but be held to be unfounded and without basis. The question may, however, still remain that even if the respondent No. 1 acted most honestly and all allegations to the contrary made against him and/or the respondent No. 2 are without basis, whether the respondent No. 1 that is, the returning officer, was justified in law in rejecting the nomination paper on the ground of failure on the part of the petitioner to make or subscribe oath at any time before the scrutiny of the nomination papers. In other words, whether failure to make or subscribe oath as required by Article 84(a). of the Constitution of India is of such material importance as to justify rejection of the nomination paper and whether making or subscribing oath as required by the later part of Article 84(a) of the Constitution of India is also a part of the qualification for membership for Parliament. Whatever argument may be advanced on this aspect of this matter, I feel that the matter is to be held to have been settled by the decision of the Supreme Court in Pasupati Math Singh Vs. Harihar Prasad (AIR 1968 Supreme Court 1064) where construing the analogous provisions of Articles 173(a) of the Constitution of India, it was held by the Supreme Court that if the candidate has failed to make and subscribe the requisite oath before the date of scrutiny, he become disqualified to be chosen to fill the seat within the meaning of Section 36 of the Representation of People Act, and that the oath must be made and subscribed before the date of scrutiny so that the candidate can be said to possess the qualification as required by Article 173 (a) of the Constitution of India on the whole of the day on which the scrutiny of the nomination has to take place. The decision in Pasupati Nath’s case again followed by the Supreme Court in Khaje Khanavar Kharidarkhan Hossain Khan Vs. Saidavadahli Nijalingappa (AIR 1969 Supreme Court 1034). I must, therefore, hold that under the circumstances of case of respondent No. 1 was right in rejecting the nomination paper of the petitioner.

12. I have discussed hereinafore the relevant Sections of the Representation of People Act, 1951, and the various reported decisions thereof on different High Courts and the Supreme Court. The Representation of People Acts, of 1950 and 1951 appear to have been extended to and enforce in Sikkim by the Election Laws (Extension to Sikkim) Act, 1976 with certain changes introduced therein by the latter Act. Tasked the learned counsel that when under clause (n) of Article 371 F of the Constitution of India, “the President may, by public notification, extend with such restrictions or modification as he thinks fit to the State of Sikkim any enactment which is in force in a State in India at the date of the notification” and innumerable enactments have been extended to and enforced in Sikkim by Presidential Notifications under the said clause (11), why these two enactments, being the Representation of People Acts of 1950 and 1951, were to be ex ended by a Parliamentary Legislation preceded by a Presidential Ordinance arid not by a notification under Article 371 F (n)”. The learned counsel frankly admitted that they were not in a position to state as to why this course of extension by Parliamentary Legislation was resorted to and the power of the President under Article 371F (n) was not invoked.

13. I, however, feel that the reasons for extending these two Representation of People Acts of 1950 and 1951 by Parliamentary Legislature and not by a notification under clause (n) of Article 371F, are to be found in clause (f) of the said Article which provides that “Parliament may, for the purpose of protecting the rights and interests, of the different sections of the population of Sikkim, makes provision for the number of seats in the Legislative Assembly of the State of Sikkim which may be filled by candidates belonging to such section and for the delimitation of the assembly constituencies from which candidates belonging to such sections alone may stand for election to the Legislative Assembly of the State of Sikkim”. Such provisions for reservation of seats appear to have been made by inserting a new section 7A in the Representation of People Act, of 1950 and also by some other Sections inserted in the Representation of People Acts of 1950 and 1951 as extended to Sikkim. But as the provisions of clause (f) Article 371 F require such provisions to be made by Parliament, which would mean by law made by Parliament, obviously after the Article 371 F itself was enacted in 1975, this could not be done by merely extending the aforesaid Acts of 1950 and 1951, enacted long before the enactment of Article 371 F, by Presidential Notification under clause (n) of Article 371 F whether with or without such modifications. A fresh Parliamentary Act enacted in accordance with the provisions of clause (f) of Article 371 F was, therefore, necessary and that is why the provisions of the Representation of People Acts of 1950 and 1951 have been brought into operation in Sikkim by a Parliamentary Legislation being the Election Laws (Extension of Sikkim) Act, 1976, with such additional provisions as are envisaged in clause (f) of Article 371 F.

14. But apart from the fact that clause (f) of Article 371F would require a law by Parliament made obviously after the said Article was enacted in 1975, such material modifications as have been made by the Election Laws (Extension to Sikkim) Act, 1976 in the provisions of the Representation of People Acts of 1950 and 1951, could not be done if those Acts were extended by a Notification under clause (n) of Article 371 F, even though the said clause authorises the President to extend enactments to Sikkim “with such restrictions or modifications as he thinks fit.” As pointed out by Bose, J. in the Delhi Laws Act case (AIR 1951 Supreme Court 332 at 439-40) and reiterated by his Lordship in delivering the judgement in Rajnarain Singh's case (AIR 1954 Supreme Court 569), the power “to restrict and modify” does not import the power to make essential changes, but is confined to alterations of a minor character such as are necessary to make an Act intended for and in force in one area applicable to another area or to delete portions which are meant solely for the area where it was already and originally in force or the like. The modifications made and required to be made in the Representation of People Acts of 1950 and 1951 in their application to Sikkim are surely not of minor character but are of major and material importance and that may be also another reason why a fresh parliamentary Act was felt to be necessary. But any way, this question is not of any material importance in this case and, therefore, need not be pursued any further.

15. The election petition stands dismissed with costs. The petitioner shall pay cost of Rupees two hundred and fifty only to each of the three contesting respondents.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The Central General Clauses Act, 1897, has been extended to and enforced in Sikkim. The main purpose of the said Act is to shorten the language of statutory enactments and to provide for uniform principles of interpretations of statutes and the provisions and expressions contained therein.

The provisions of the General Clauses Act, 1897, however, do not apply to the State laws and, therefore, there are different General Clauses Acts in force in different states for the State laws of those States. It has therefore, been felt that in Sikkim also there should be such an enactment which would apply to the Sikkim State laws. This Bill has been drafted accordingly incorporating the principles of the Central General Clauses Act, 1897, and other similar Acts of other States with such changes as have felt to be necessary in the context of the State of Sikkim.

The Bill has been framed accordingly.

8. It has been decided that except for high altitude areas where certain vehicles are supposed to make compulsory night halt no allowance for night halt should be given to bus and truck drivers as this would mean discouraging them from performing higher kilometrage. In view of this, it has been decided that there should be higher kilometrage allowance and rationalise it in a manner so that higher benefits would automatically following performance of higher kilometrage. In doing so the bus kilometrage should be given an edge over the truck kilometrage because the bus runnings are subjected to fixed distances. Keeping this in view the following fixed allowances are approved.

a) Truck Kilometrage Allowance:
